Double R Interns Grow With Dance Place for *The Arts Show & Tell*SM

Double R Productions interns join the Cultural Alliance of Greater Washington (CAGW) to produce a video segment showcasing Dance Place for *The Arts Show & Tell*SM. The program, which airs on community television stations throughout the Washington metropolitan region, is a half hour program that highlights local art organizations around the Washington, DC area. Dance Place was chosen to be featured in *The Arts Show & Tell*SM because of its commitment to the public as a dance school, presenter of dance, and provider of youth programs. Double R Productions worked with the CAGW and Dance Place to coordinate a day of shooting where Double R Productions interns shot footage of everything from African, modern and hip-hop dance classes, and youth summer camp activities. The 12- minute video segment called Dance Place “We Grow” features interviews from the Founding Director of Dance Place, Carla Perlo and Co- Director, Deborah Riley. Double R Productions interns took Dance Place’s motto “we grow” and used it as the underlying theme to display the students at Dance Place growing through the performing arts and creative education. Through this great opportunity, the Double R Productions interns were able to grow as well in their knowledge of production. Double R Productions interns served as the producers, writers, videographers, and interviewers for the shoot. Double R Productions Associate Producer, Megan Kimball worked closely with the Double R Productions interns to write and edit the segment. The end result was a creative and inventive video that portrayed the devotion of Dance Place to the community and thoroughly showed why Dance Place is one of the top dance venues in the Washington, DC area. This is Double R Productions eighth time producing a segment with the CAGW for *The Arts Show & Tell*SM.

“The Cultural Alliance of Greater Washington’s Dance Place “We Grow” video proved to be a great opportunity for our interns to grow in their experience and learn more about production. Double R Productions is a supporter of *The Arts Show & Tell*SM because of its efforts to spread arts throughout the community.” stated Double R Productions president Rosemary Reed.
